VI Mon. Auguſt hath xxxi days.

‘ For us thro' 12 bright ſigns Apollo guides
‘ The year, and earth in ſev'ral climes divides.
‘ Five girdles bind the ſkies, the torrid zone
‘ Glows with the paſſing and repaſſing ſun.
‘ Far on the right and left, th' extreams of heav'n,
‘ To froſts and ſnows and bitter blaſts are giv'n.
‘ Betwixt the midſt and theſe, ~~the~~ God hath aſſign'd
‘ Two habitable ſeats for humane kind.

VII Mon. September hath xxx days.

Death is a Fiſherman, the world we ſee
His Fiſh-pond is, and we the Fiſhes be:
His Net ſome general Sickneſs; however he
Is not ſo kind as other Fiſhers be;
For if they take one of the ſmaller Fry,
They throw him in again, he ſhall not die:
But Death is ſure to kill all he can get,
And all is Fiſh with him that comes to Net.
